

Hercules

Hercules is the mortal son of the god Zeus. His stepmother Hera was jealous of his strength, and drove him insane. To repent for the shame of his insanity, he is assigned 12 labors. In achieving these tasks, he proved his great strength.

Headwear: To prove his honor, the king assigned the Greek hero, Hercules 12 tasks, and killing the Nemean lion was the first one. Hercules wears the head of a lion as a symbol of his great strength.

Body: The Greek hero Hercules wears armor and carries a club to symbolize his bravery and great strength as a warrior.

Legs: These are the legs of the Greek hero, Hercules.

FACT: When Hercules dies, he becomes a god, because of his bravery and strength. He ascends to Mt. Olympus to live with the other gods.

